MACKENZIE WELCOMES SENIOR INTERIOR DESIGNER LINDA SHEDD

Seattle, Washington – Mackenzie is pleased to announce the addition of Linda Shedd, IIDA, as a project manager and senior interior designer. Susan Higbee, Principal and Director of Interiors at Mackenzie, is confident that Shedd's design expertise and depth of experience will bring significant value to not only the growing Interiors Department, but the firm's additional design disciplines and Mackenzie's clients as well. "Linda brings a keen ability to develop strong, lasting client relationships through delivery and quality of her work that aligns with Mackenzie's core values," Higbee said. "We are thrilled to have her on board and know her leadership will be able to broaden our service and design delivery to new and existing clients."

Shedd has over 25 years of design and project management experience, with an expansive project portfolio that includes corporate tenant improvements, financial institutions, multi-family housing, fitness studios, public facilities, data centers, and several large-scale building repositioning projects. "Mackenzie is an exciting team of professionals that support my core beliefs of design excellence and client service," Shedd said. She is a professional member of the International Interior Design Association (IIDA) and carries credentials for the National Council for Interior Design Qualification (NCIDQ). She received her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in interior design from Northern Illinois University.

Mackenzie's Managing Principal, Rich Mitchell, believes the addition of Shedd to the Interiors Department in Seattle will strategically position Mackenzie to serve their clients more efficiently in the region. "Our Seattle office has seen consistent growth in staff over the past several years, and we expect to see continued expansion in the Seattle and Puget Sound market," Mitchell said. "Linda's experience and design expertise will support that growth and provide valued leadership for our designers, which will ultimately benefit our clients in receiving the service they deserve."
